Faculty/Staff,

You may have noticed some activity south of the Administrative Center and wondered "what in the world are those cinder blocks doing there?"

It has been a while since we provided an update; since December 2, 2019, in fact! As a part of our Task Force for Sexual Misconduct and Interpersonal Safety recommendations from 2017, Hesston College committed to creating a physical memorial that creates a physical acknowledgement of broken relationships and missteps in Hesston College's history and space for our community to interact in thoughtful ways, as individuals or small groups, to build relationships and communication.

This project has been in the works for a long time and this spring we were able to start work on it. Hanna Eastin, Art Professor, is overseeing the construction based on the design from Isaac Shue, alum.

The goal is for this project to be completed by the fall, and a dedication ceremony will occur after completion.

In the meantime, we apologize for the construction that is occurring and hope that you, like us, look forward to what it will look like in the near future!
